1979 OFFICIAL YEARBOOK

ALLAN H. "BUD" SELIG

President -
Chief Executive Officer

Success has finally found its way into Milwaukee. And what was once called the Domino Theory can now be renamed the Allan H. "Bud" Selig Theory, especially after the chain of happenings caused by the Brewer President -- Chief Executive Officer's two major moves following the 1977 season. Within two days of each other, Selig began his revamping plans by announcing the signing of Larry Hisle, a Re-entry Draftee and the hiring of Harry Dalton as Executive Vice President -- General Manager. The ball kept rolling, when Dalton continued to make important additions to the organization, the biggest, of course, the hiring of George Bamberger as manager. And the end result of this continuum was a camaraderie among players, coaches, front office personnel and fans, alike. Selig reaped the rewards then, by seeing the Brewers finish third in the rugged Eastern Division of the American League, with the fourth best record (93-69) in baseball -- the finest Brewer season in the club's nine-year history. Selig's efforts in the turnabout were soon after recognized by UPI and the local baseball writers by being named the "Major League Executive of the Year," capping off several years of hard work and dedication in baseball.

HARRY DALTON

Executive Vice President -
General Manager

It seems whenever Harry Dalton inserts his baseball knowledge into an organization, success is soon to follow. He did it with the Baltimore Orioles and the California Angels. and in 1978, he did it with the Milwaukee Brewers as he took the reigns as the Brewers Executive Vice President -- General Manager. Harry quickly devoted his efforts to upgrade the club in vital areas, landing outfielder Ben Oglivie and catchers Ray Fosse and Buck Martinez, and perhaps his finest move, naming George Bamberger as manager on January 20, 1978. The Brewers then proceeded to have their best season ever with the fourth best record (93-69) in the majors, capturing third place in the American League Eastern Division. Likewise, it was no surprise when Harry was named the "General Manager of the Year" by Baseball Bulletin and the local baseball scribes. He didn't rest on his laurels though, as he signed Brewer Jim Slaton, a 17-game winner with Detroit last season in the recent Re-entry Draft and traded for hard throwing Reggie Cleveland to boost the rapidly improving pitching staff. 1979 should prove to be a promising season for the Brewers, and Harry Dalton certainly deserves a good deal of the credit.

31/George BAMBERGER
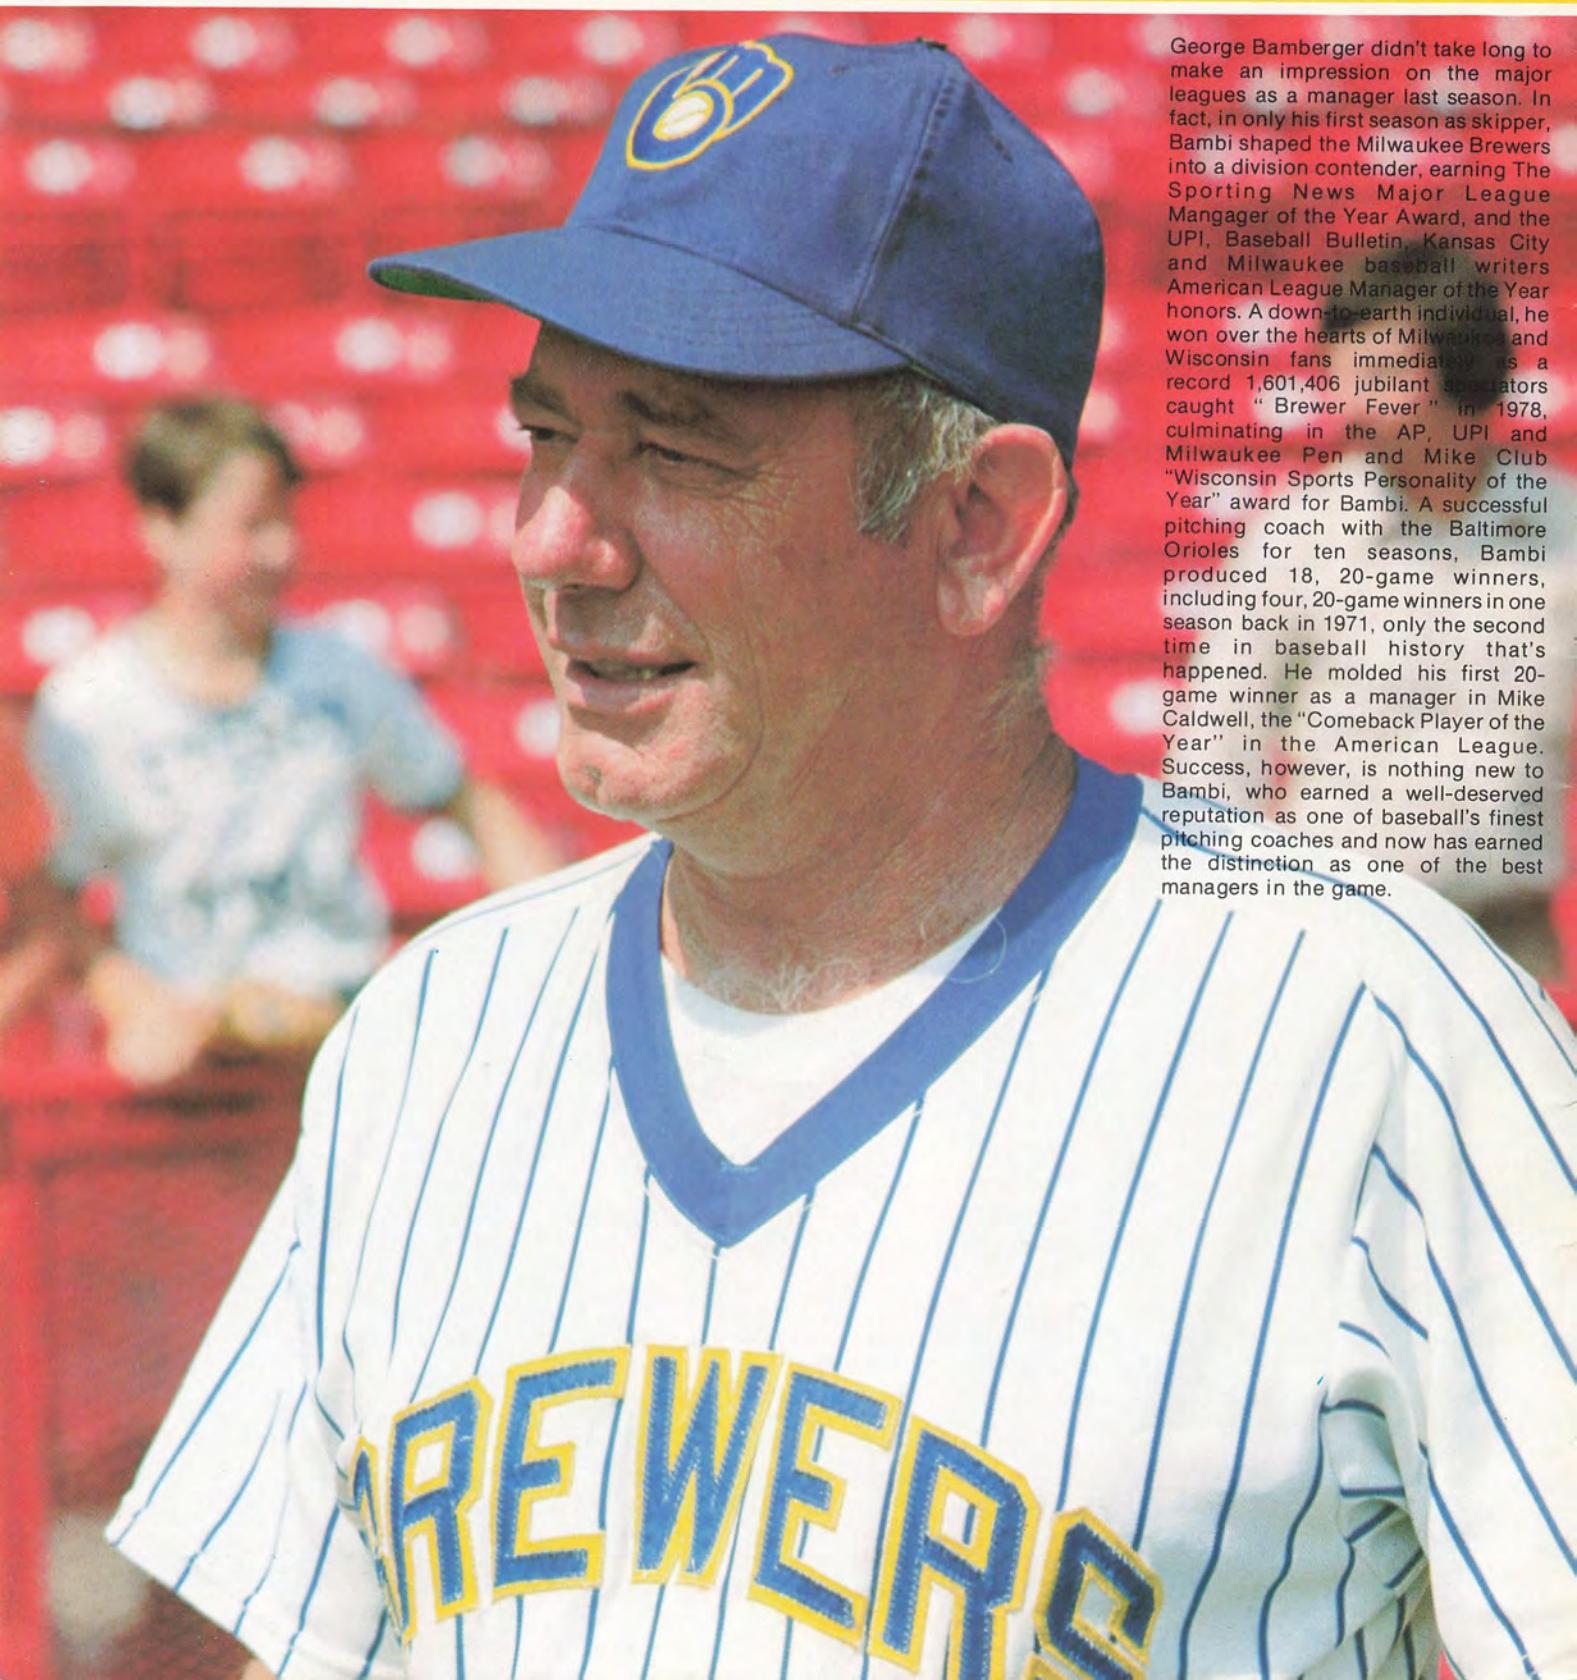

George Bamberger didn't take long to make an impression on the major leagues as a manager last season. In fact, in only his first season as skipper, Bambi shaped the Milwaukee Brewers into a division contender, earning The Sporting News Major League Mangager of the Year Award, and the UPI, Baseball Bulletin, Kansas City and Milwaukee baseball writers American League Manager of the Year honors. A down-to-earth individual, he won over the hearts of Milwaukee and Wisconsin fans immediately as a record 1,601,406 jubilant spectators caught " Brewer Fever " in 1978, culminating in the AP, UPI and Milwaukee Pen and Mike Club "Wisconsin Sports Personality of the Year" award for Bambi. A successful pitching coach with the Baltimore Orioles for ten seasons, Bambi produced 18, 20-game winners, including four, 20-game winners in one season back in 1971, only the second time in baseball history that's happened. He molded his first 20-game winner as a manager in Mike Caldwell, the "Comeback Player of the Year" in the American League. Success, however, is nothing new to Bambi, who earned a well-deserved reputation as one of baseball's finest pitching coaches and now has earned the distinction as one of the best managers in the game.

9/ Larry HISLE

Larry was named the club's "Most Valuable Player" for 1978 by the local baseball writers and finished third in the league's MVP voting. An American League All-Star, this softspoken superstar ranked in six offensive departments in the American League's Top Ten with 34 homeruns, a .533 slugging average, 115 RBIs, (13 game winners), 96 runs, 277 total bases and a .377 on base percentage.
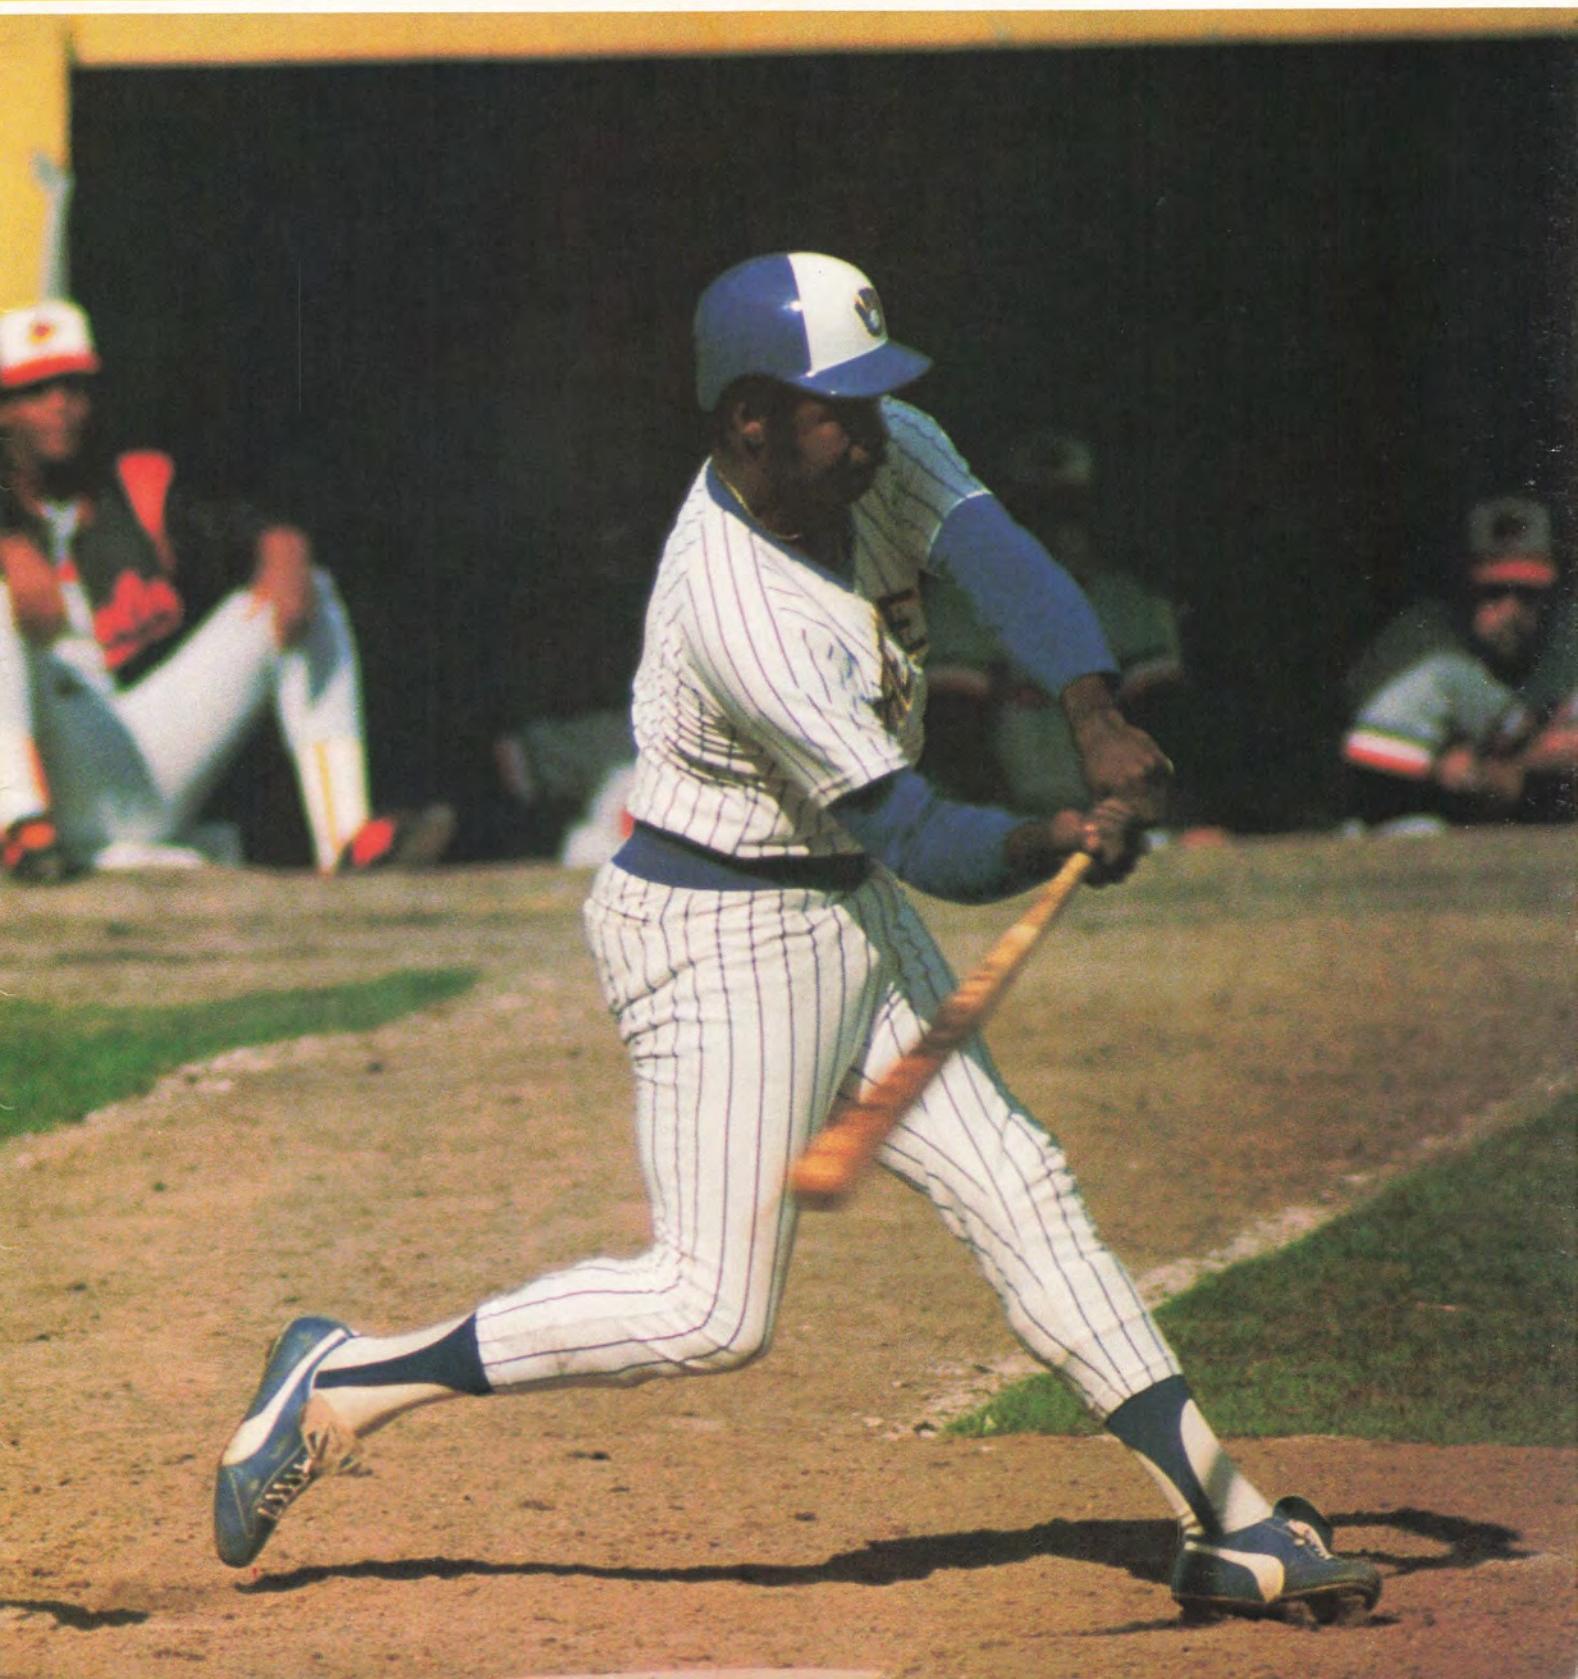

Voted the "Comeback Player of the Year" in the American League by The Sporting News, UPI and Baseball Bulletin, Mike established a new Brewer record with his 22-9 mark last season, to become only the second pitcher to attain the 20-win plateau in the club's nine year existence. He was also named to the UPI American League All-Star Team, topping the majors with 23 complete games (19 wins) and notching the third best ERA with a 2.37 mark. In addition, Mike was runner-up for the coveted A.L. Cy Young Award.

CALDWELL

39/Lary
SORENSEN

In his first full season in the majors, Lary joined the American League All-Star team last July and pitched a near perfect three innings in that annual classic. This big righthander ranked in four pitching areas in the league: 281.0 innings pitched (4th); 17 complete games (5th); 18 wins (9th); and three shutouts (10th), along with establishing a new Brewer single season record, completing eight straight outings from May 6th through June 11th. Also, Lary allowed a mere 1.6 walks per nine innings.

Sal enjoyed one of his finest seasons in his 11-year career in 1978, batting .285, his best effort since helping Oakland win the 1973 World Series. Sal circled the bases 17 times, driving in 78 runs and topping the club with 154 hits. He finished the season hitting a strong .308 after the All-Star break. His .375 on base percentage was good for 11th in the league while his 85 runs scored, ranked him tied for 12th. The durable 4-time All-Star missed only 10 games.

6/ Sal
BANDO
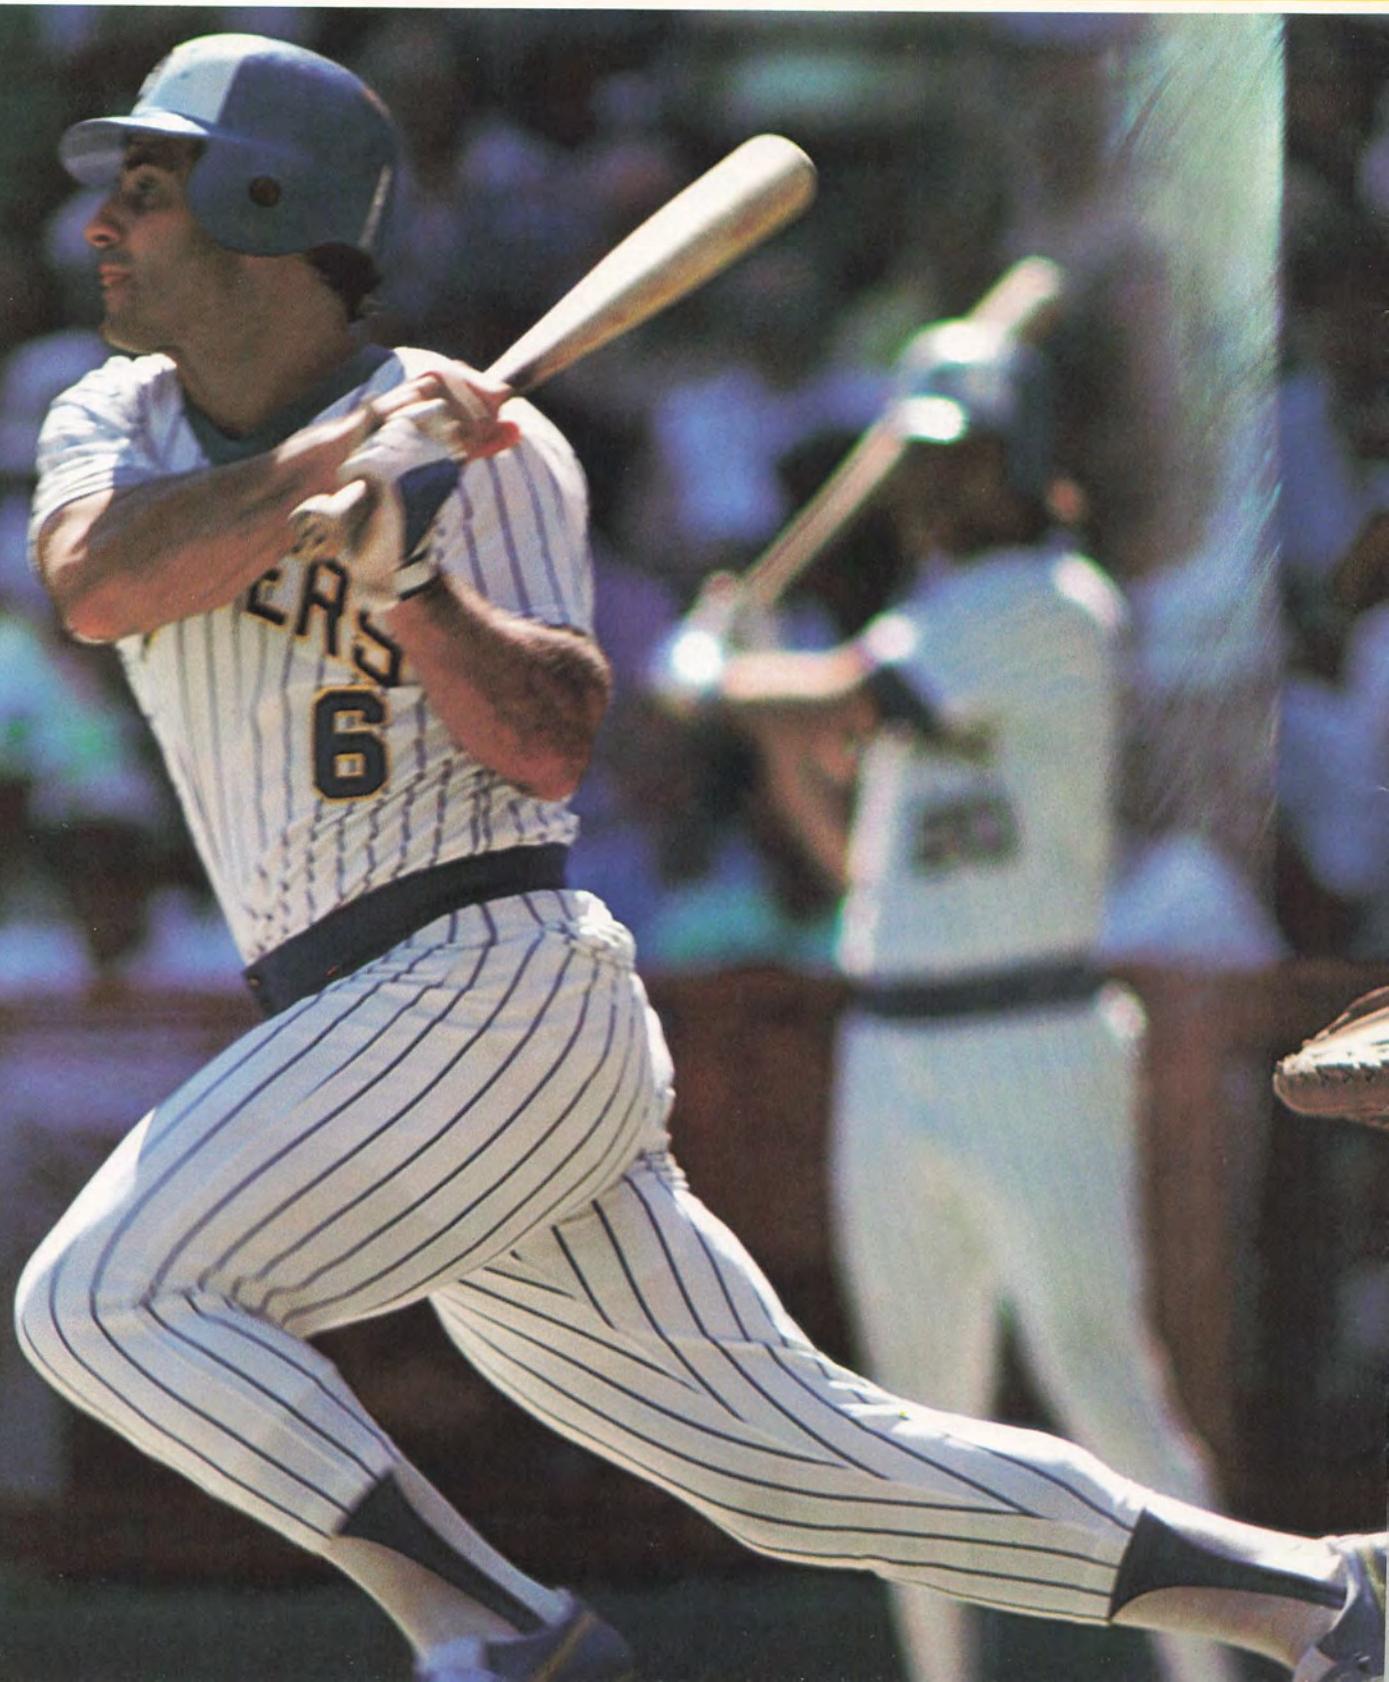

7/Don
MONEY

Don played all four positions in the infield last season without a hitch. The 13-year veteran is in his seventh season with the Brewers and now is the All-Time Club Leader in five offensive departments. He holds the All-Time mark with 819 games, 3,117 at bats, 443 runs, 878 hits and 152 doubles. A Brewer All-Star for the third straight season, Don set personal highs with 88 runs and a .293 batting average, his best mark since 1970, ranking him ninth and 13th, respectively, in the league.
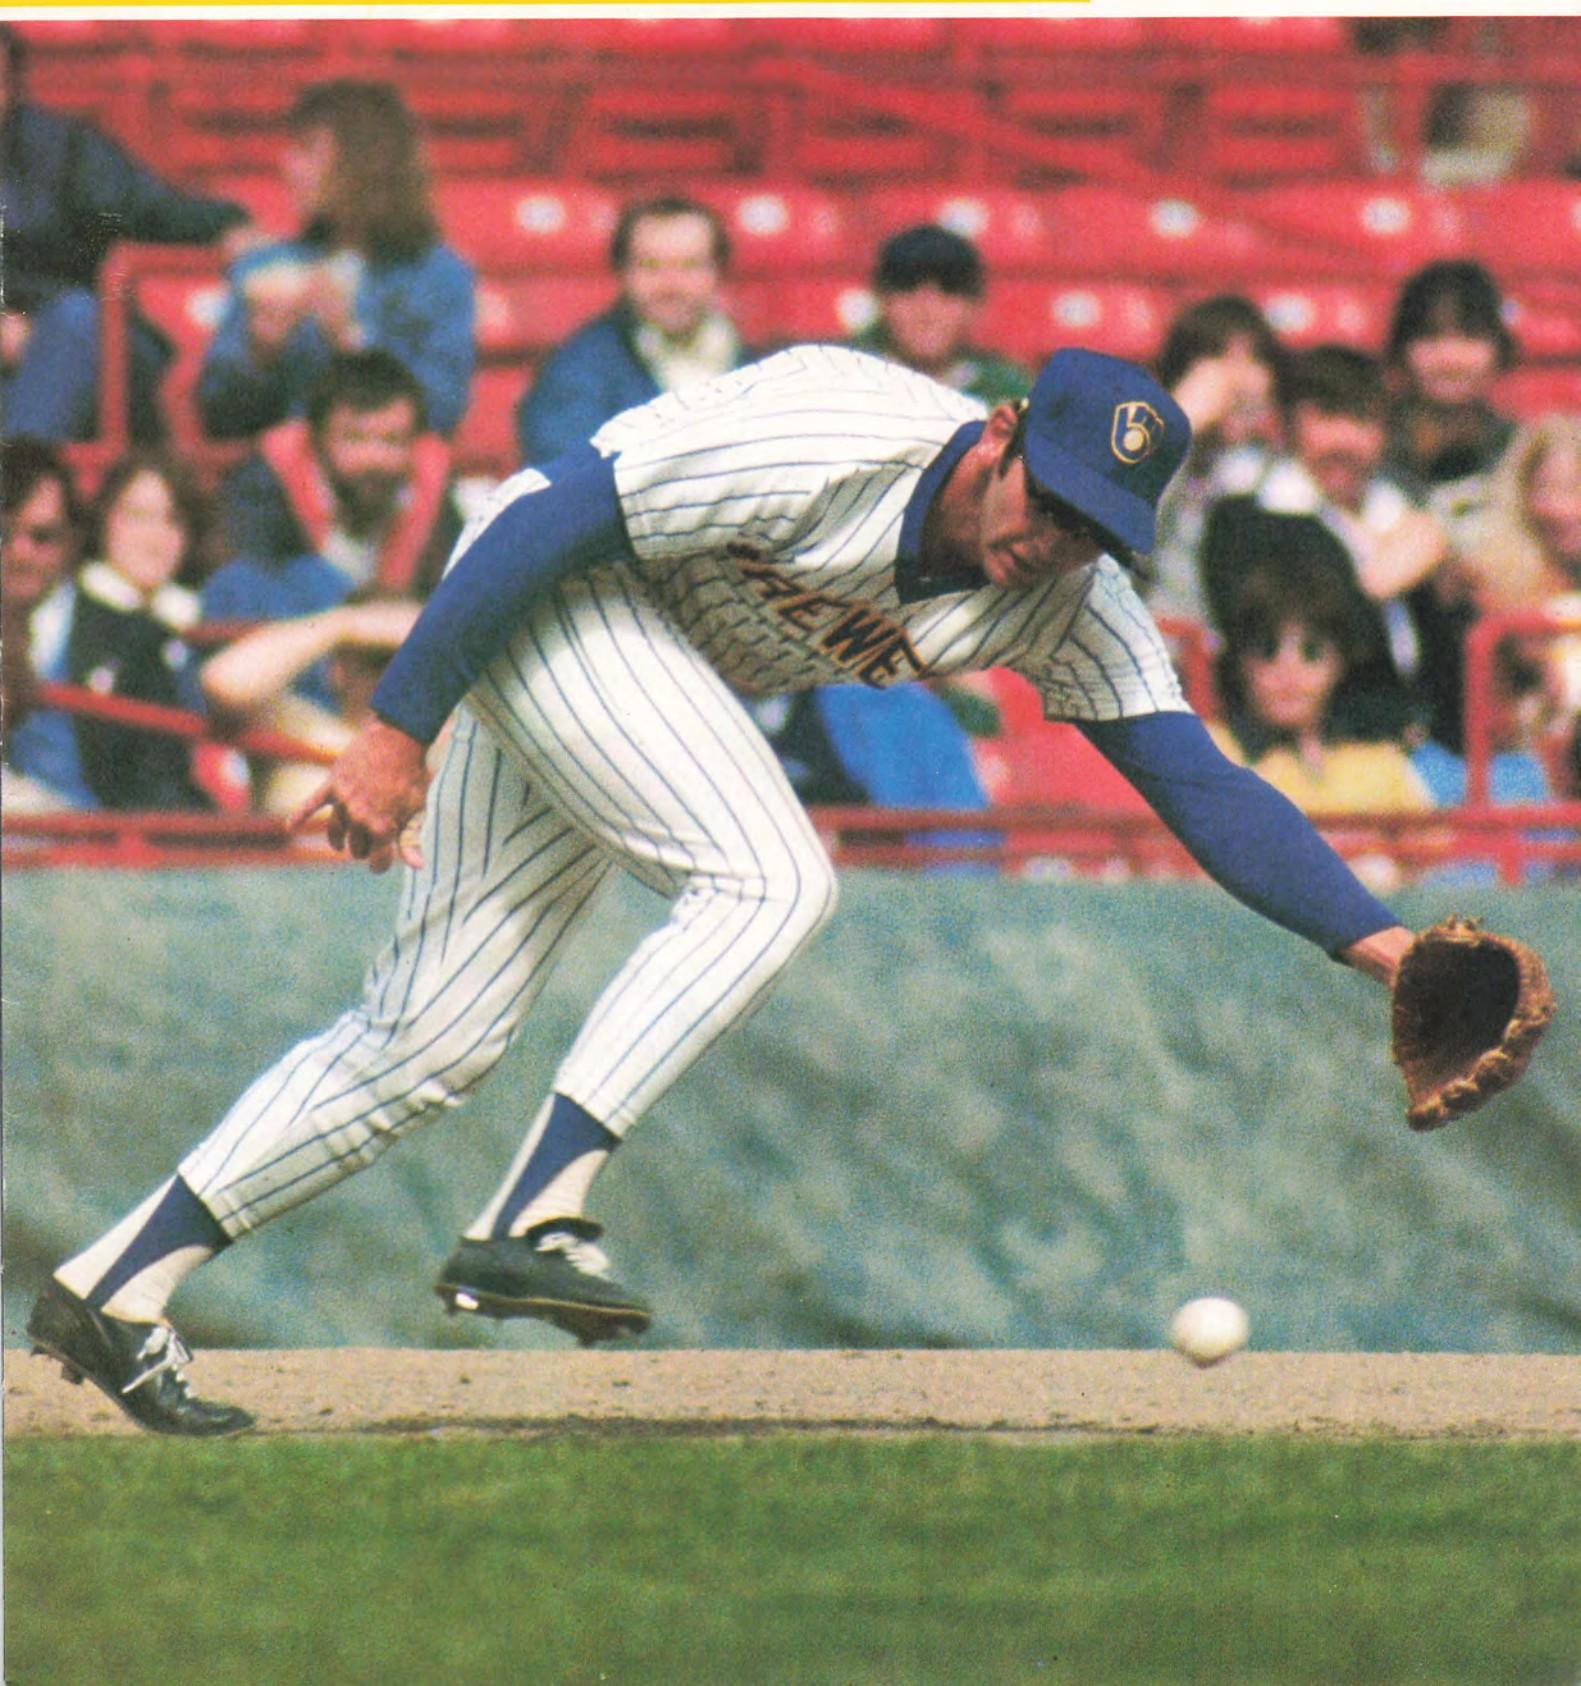

Robin was named as the starting shortstop on the AP, UPI, The Sporting News and Baseball Bulletin American League All-Star Team, though he missed the first month and a half of the 1978 season with an ankle injury. A six year veteran, he set personal highs with nine homers, 71 RBIs, nine triples and a hefty .293 batting average. A speedster on the bases, Robin tied a personal high by swiping 16 bases. In the field he fell two short of the Brewers individual season record by turning 79 double plays.

19/Robin
YOUNT
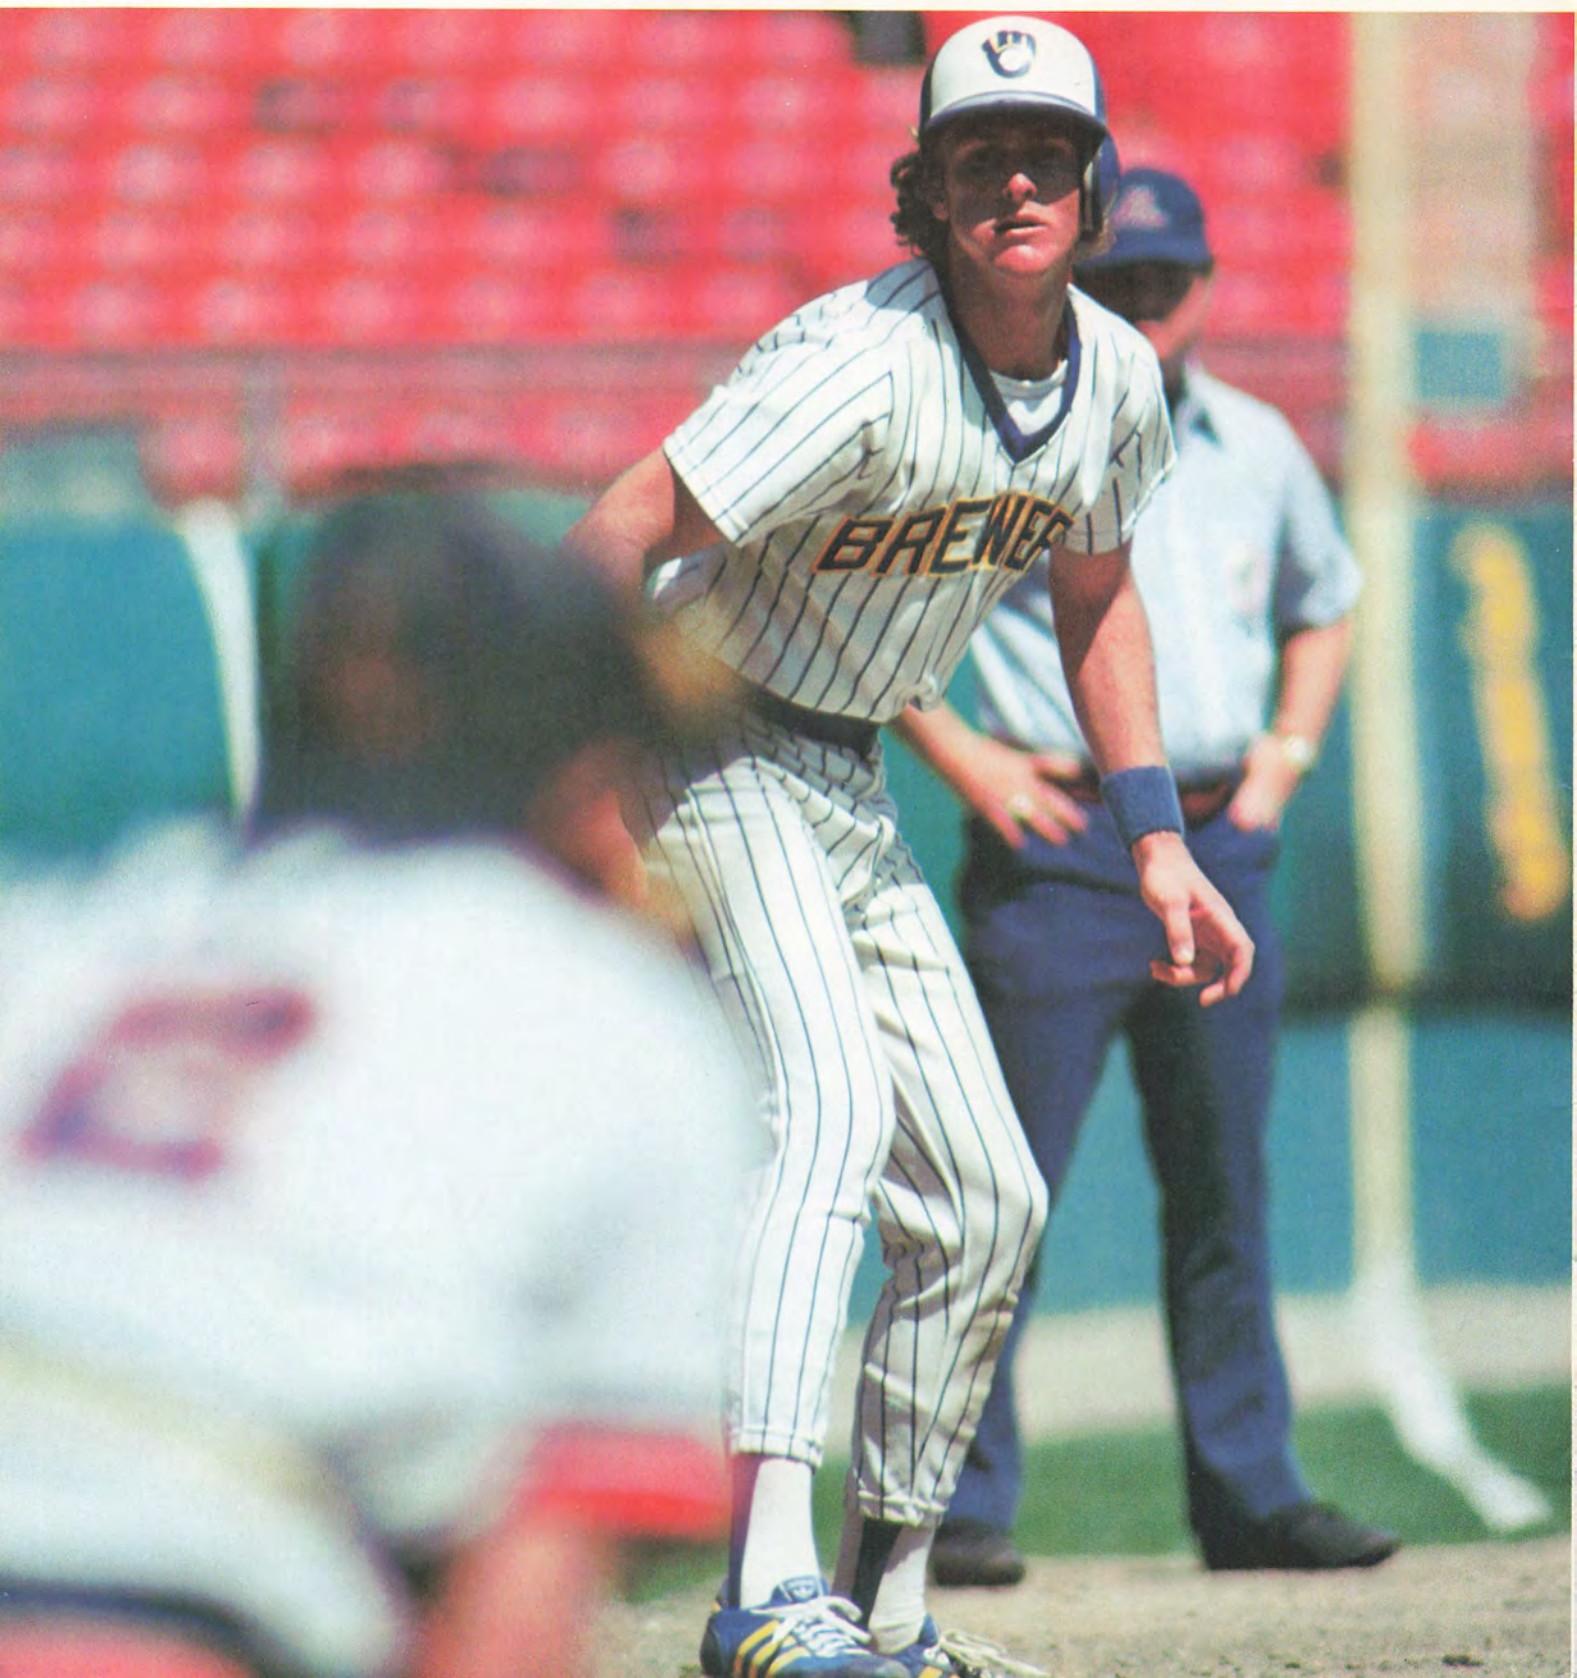

4/Paul MOLITOR

Paul became the first Brewer ever to receive the American League "Rookie of the Year" award by The Sporting News, Baseball Digest and the local baseball scribes. He also was named to the Baseball Digest and Topps All-Star Rookie Team. A fleetfooted base runner, Paul pocketed a club high 30 stolen bases, including third base six times and home once. Batting a respectable .273 and scoring 73 runs, Paul demonstrated power with six homers, four triples and 26 doubles.

A superb .310 clutch hitter, Benji finished fifth in the American League batting race with a .303 average in 1978. A native of Panama, he powdered 18 homeruns with a career high 72 RBIs. Benji's .497 slugging mark and his .372 on base percentage, put him ninth and 13th, respectively, in the league. He nearly put himself into the major league record books in June when he reached base 12 consecutive times and finished the season with a flurry, batting .348 after the All-Star break.

24/Ben OGLIVIE
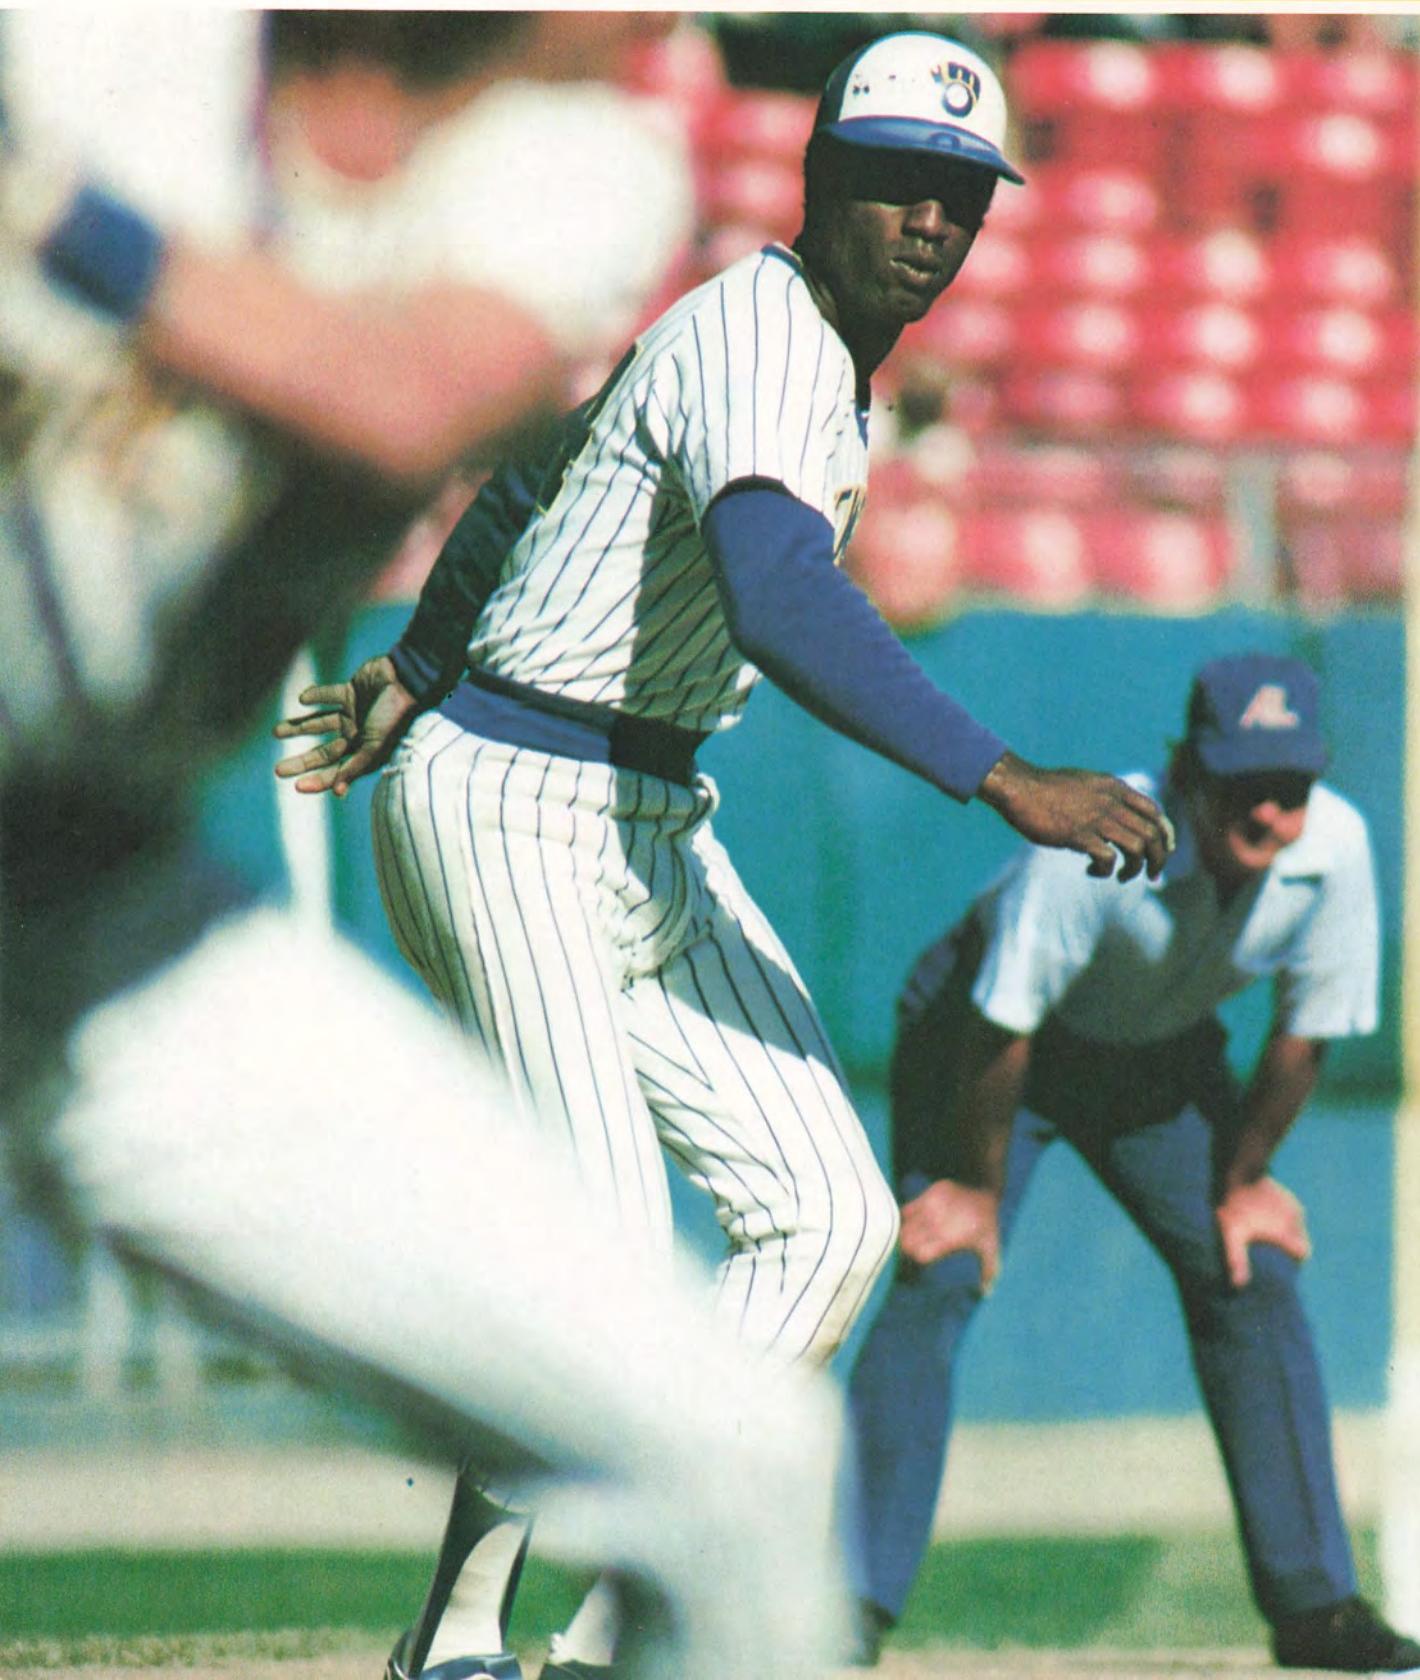

15/Cecil
COOPER

A natural hitter, Cecil utilized two batting stances last year, giving him his second straight .300 plus season. A broken leg in mid-June forced the dependable first baseman to miss 55 games, hampering his chances of breaking his own club record of 193 hits set in 1977. But his .312 batting average still topped the club, while his .321 mark with men on base was high among the regulars. Coop hammered 11 of his 13 homeruns and 41 of his 54 RBIs against the A.L. east.

No one can deny that Sixto has one of the strongest throwing arms in the majors especially after displaying power by gunning down an American League high 18 runners last season while being on the front end of five twin killings. And no one can say otherwise about his potential at the plate, hitting .325 or better against five teams. Sixto set personal highs with 62 runs, 61 RBIs and a .292 batting average. He also finished seventh in the league with a .383 on base percentage.

16/ Sixto
LEZCANO

20/Gorman
THOMAS

"Stormin" Gorman befitted his nickname in 1978 by showering the bleachers with 32 homeruns. And when the Brewers needed the crucial big blast, Gorman responded with 13 round-trippers had a league high ratio of one every 14 at bats. He eclipsed his previous career highs in virtually every important offensive department, highlighted by his .515 slugging percentage, sixth in the league. Gorman also showed that he can be choosy with pitches as he walked a Brewer high 73 times.

Billy celebrated his first winning season in the majors last season by posting a 12-11 record, though he missed the first month and a half recovering from an operation on his left elbow on 30 December 1977. "The Stork" registered three shutouts, good for 10th in the loop and now he ranks second in career shutouts (7) as a Brewer and third in starts (105), complete games (30) and wins (39). He concluded last year's campaign on an upbeat, pitching well in five or six outings, completing four of them with a 2.28 ERA.

25 / Bill
TRAVERS

41/Jim SLATON

Topping the Brewers All-Time Pitching List, Jim's return will provide him an opportunity to add to his club highs in starts (206), complete games (57), wins (72), innings pitched (1,449), strikeouts (701) and shutouts (16). This eight-year veteran was picked up in the Re-entry Draft last fall after posting a career high 17-11 record in 233.2 innings for the Detroit Tigers, marking the sixth straight season he has won 10 or more games and hurled 200 plus frames.

A steady catcher, Buck platooned with Charlie Moore last year and together they allowed a mere four pass balls, fewest in the American League. Buck also set personal highs with 26 runs, 56 hits and 10 doubles in 89 games. He had five important game winning RBIs and when the Brewers needed men in scoring position, Buck responded with 12 sacrifice hits, third best on the club. He had his best success against Cleveland batting .367 while in August, Buck boasted a .311 average.

21/Buck
MARTINEZ
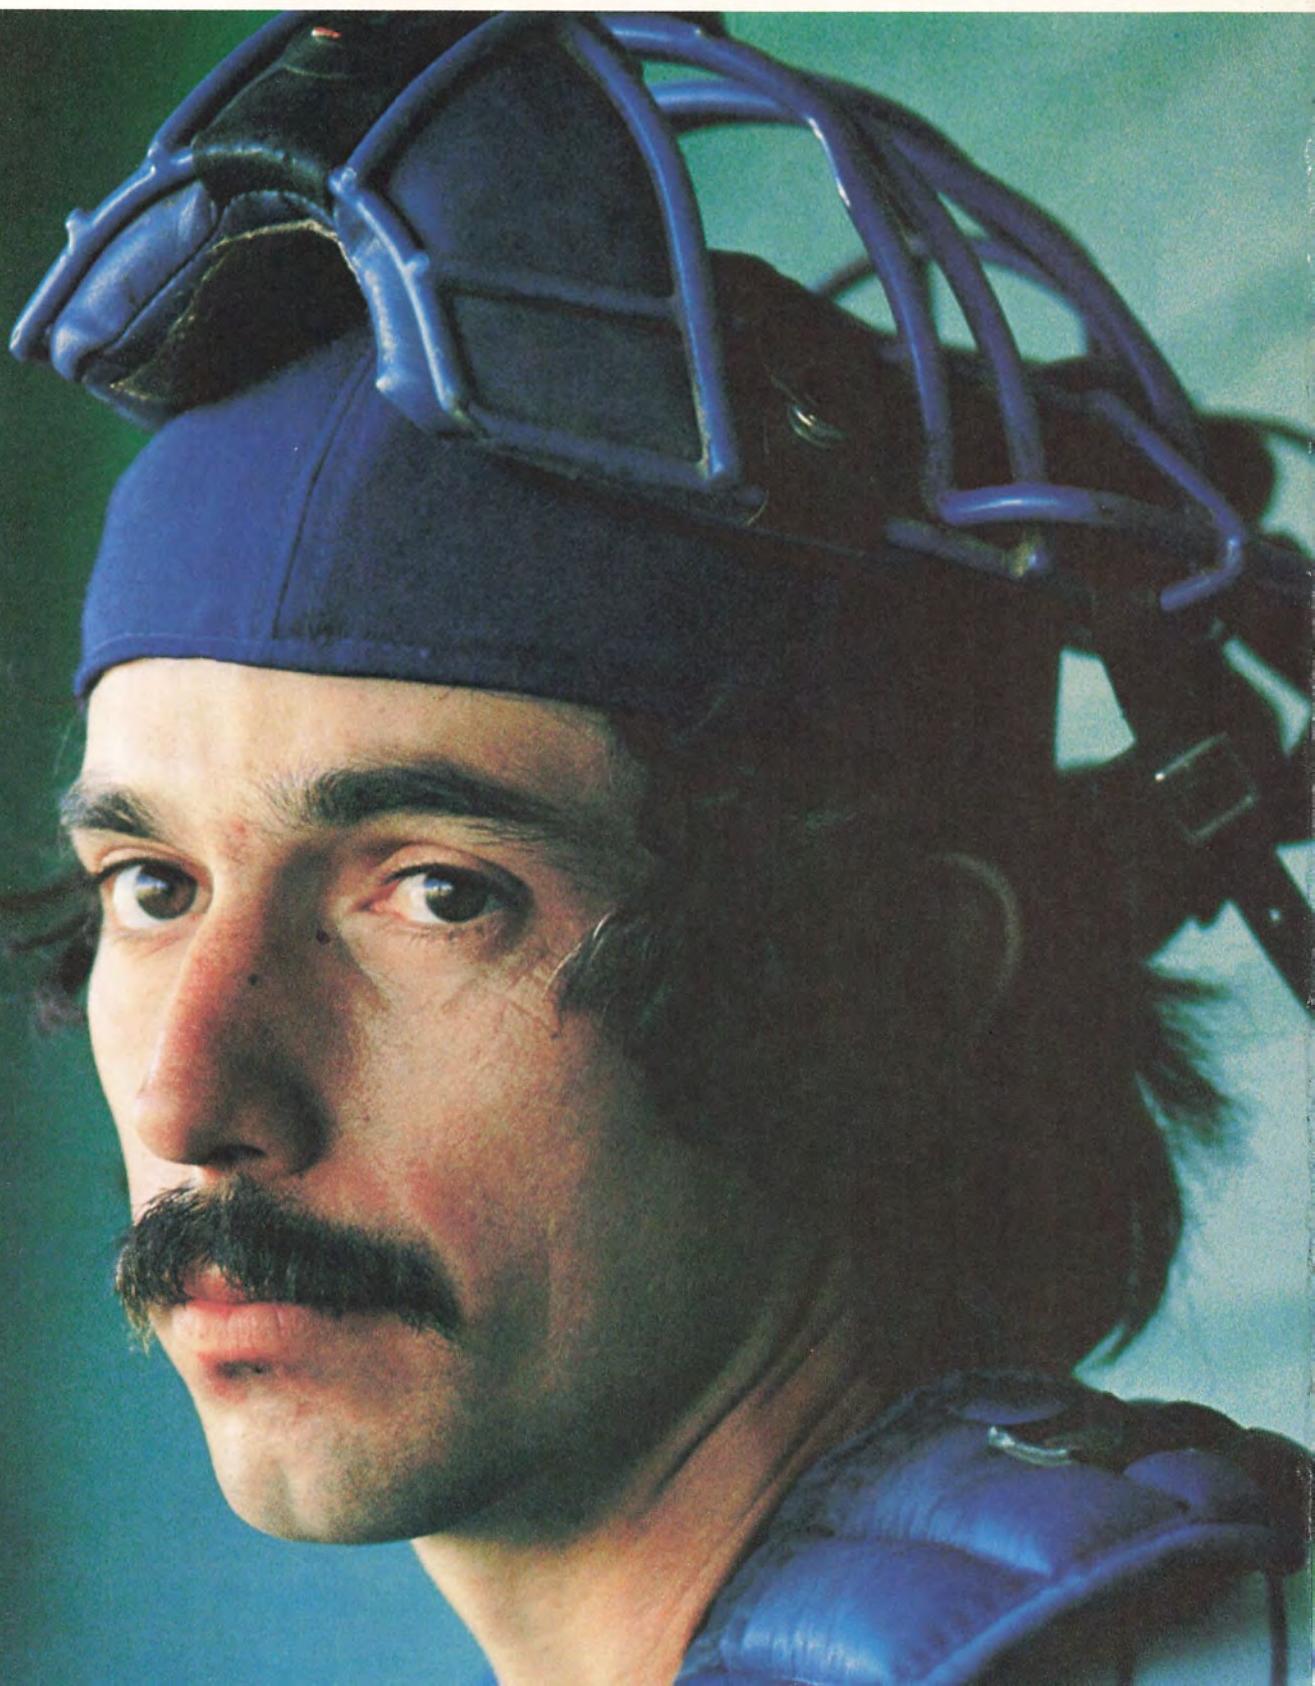

22/ Charlie MOORE

Charlie has been a durable and dependable catcher with the Brewers for seven seasons. Charlie split the duties behind the plate with Buck Martinez handling the position very well, allowing only two pass balls in 95 games, matched only in the league by teammate Martinez. Stroking the ball at a .269 clip, Charlie got hot from August 10th on, with a .319 mark. He hit .364 when he batted with a chance to tie the score and had a .292 average with men on base.

Augie set a personal high of 13 victories last season and his game plan for this year is to continue improving. Named the Brewer "Rookie of the Year" in 1976 and a member of the American League All-Rookie Team, Augie tossed one 2-hitter, two 3-hitters, two 5-hitters and one 7-hitter, along with having a fine 3-1 mark against the World Champion Yankees. A short stint in the bullpen also showed Augie's versatility, where in four relief appearances he held the opposition scoreless.

46/Jerry AUGUSTINE

23/ Reggie
CLEVELAND

Acquired in an off-season trade with the Texas Rangers, Reggie is noted for his strikeout pitching, averaging 5.5 KOs per nine innings and will definitely strengthen the Brewer bullpen corps. A very tough and aggressive hurler, this big righthander set a personal high with 12 saves last season, 11th in the American League. Against the Eastern Division, Reggie was extremely tough posting a 2.16 ERA and held a 2.45 ERA or better against eight teams.

A torn muscle in his right arm ruined what started out as a promising season for Moose a year ago. Beginning the new season with two victories in as many outings, Moose set a Brewer pitching record against the World Champion Yankees, mowing down 14 batters, including whiffing Reggie Jackson four consecutive times in a 5-3 win on April 12. However, a week later, he was forced to leave the mound in Boston with an arm injury after pitching only 1.2 innings, and subsequently was lost for most of the season.

30/Moose
HAAS
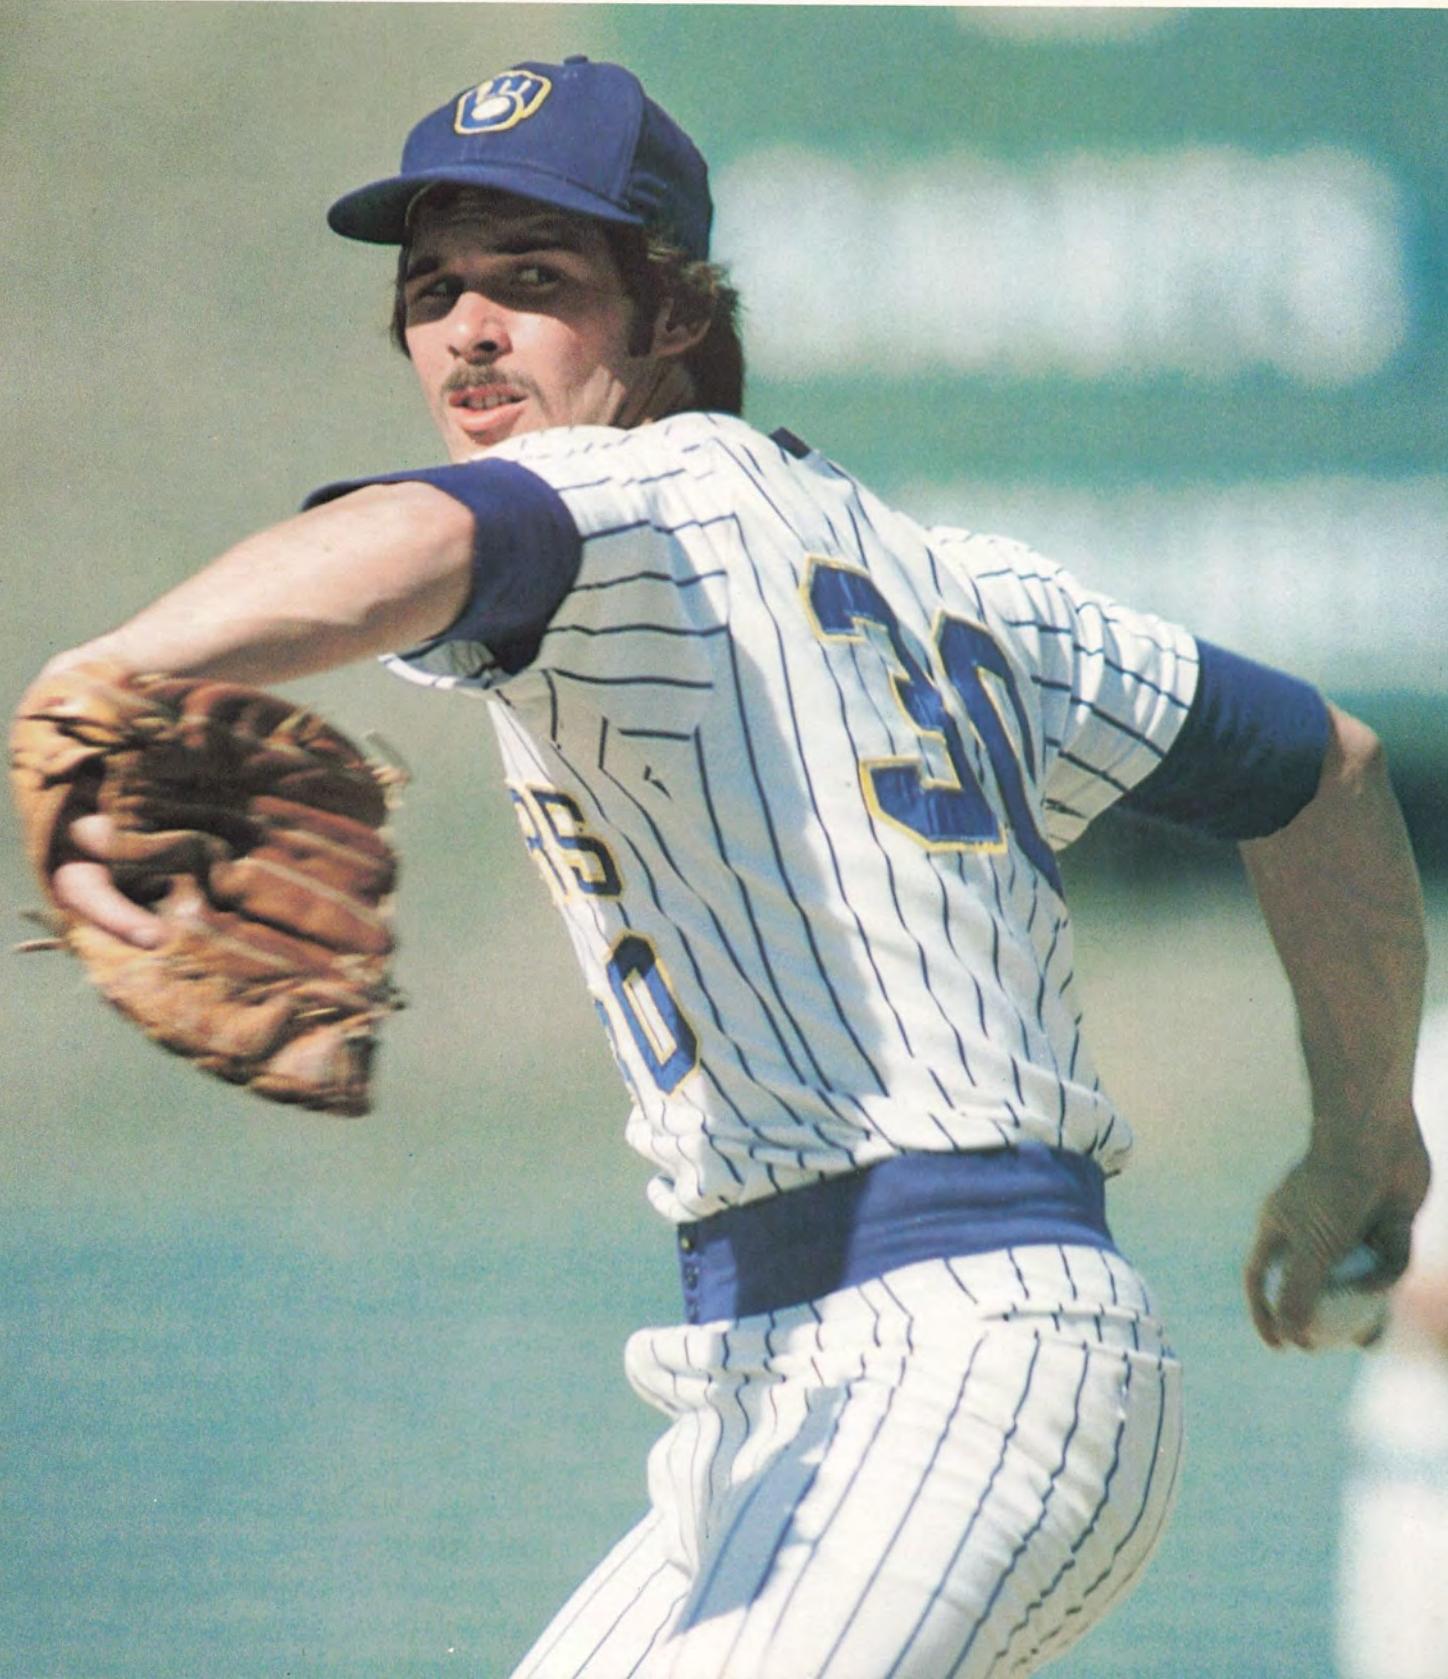

13/Ray
FOSSE

Ray is now ready to contribute to the Brewer pennant drive after sustaining a knee injury last spring which knocked him out of action for the entire 1978 season. Best known for his memorable collision with Pete Rose in the 1970 All-Star game, this two-time Golden Glover signed with the Brewers as a Re-entry Draft Free Agent during Thanksgiving in 1977. As a 13-year veteran, he played a vital role with Oakland's World Series teams in 1973-74 and was a teammate of Sal Bando for three seasons.

Bill became instrumental in the Brewer bullpen last season, notching a 1.81 ERA, the best on the club, while winning five games and registering eight saves. Going back to the end of the 1977 season and through his first nine appearances last year, this righthanded relief ace did not allow a run in 29.2 innings. From May 18th through June 21st, he had either a save or a win in eight straight games, giving up just one run and six hits in 13 frames (3-0 record, 5 saves and a 0.69 ERA).

35/Bill
CASTRO
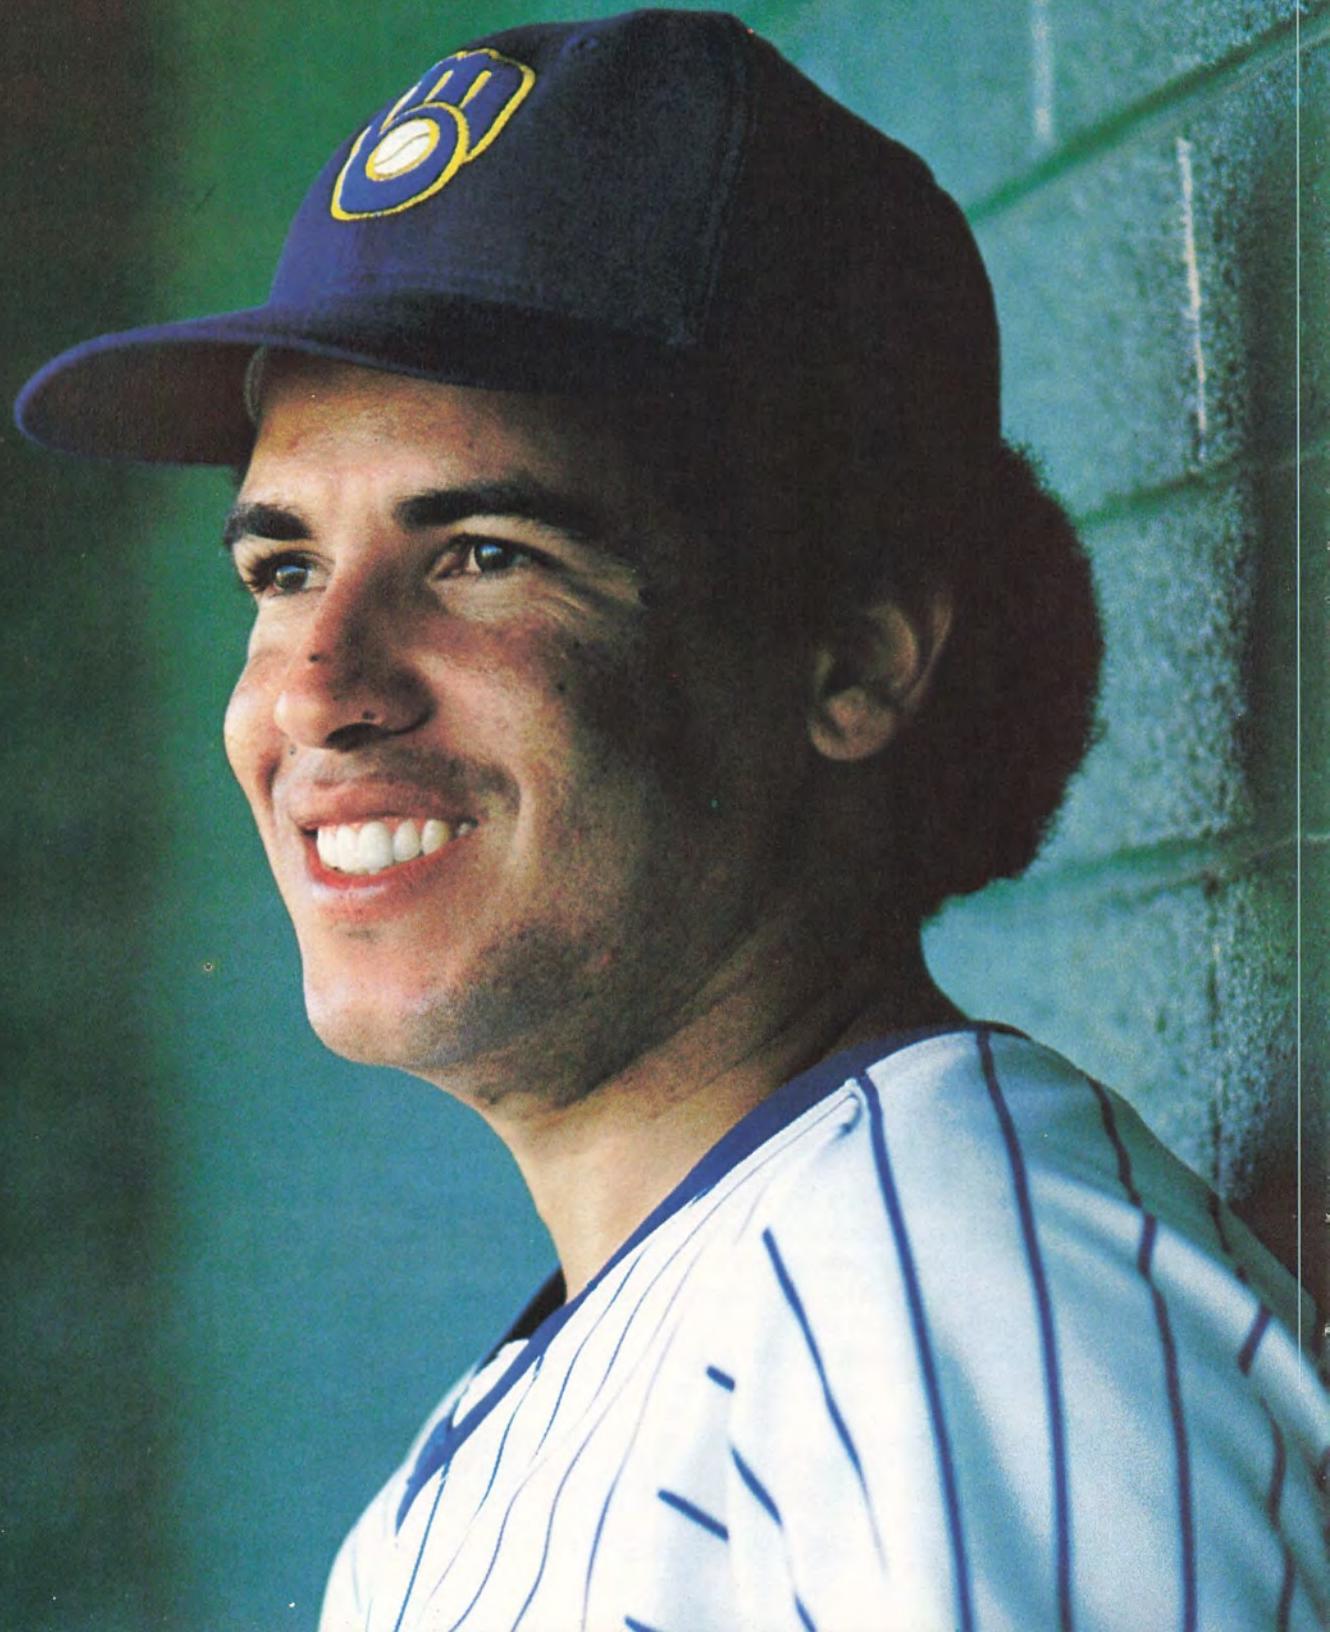

10/Bob McCLURE

When the call went out to the bullpen for a lefthanded reliever last season, Mac was the ace. He topped the club with 44 appearances and nine saves, both personal highs, while he allowed only 20 percent of the runners on base to score. A hard thrower, Mac struck out an average of 6.5 batters per nine innings and had less than a 2.84 ERA against six of the 12 clubs he faced.
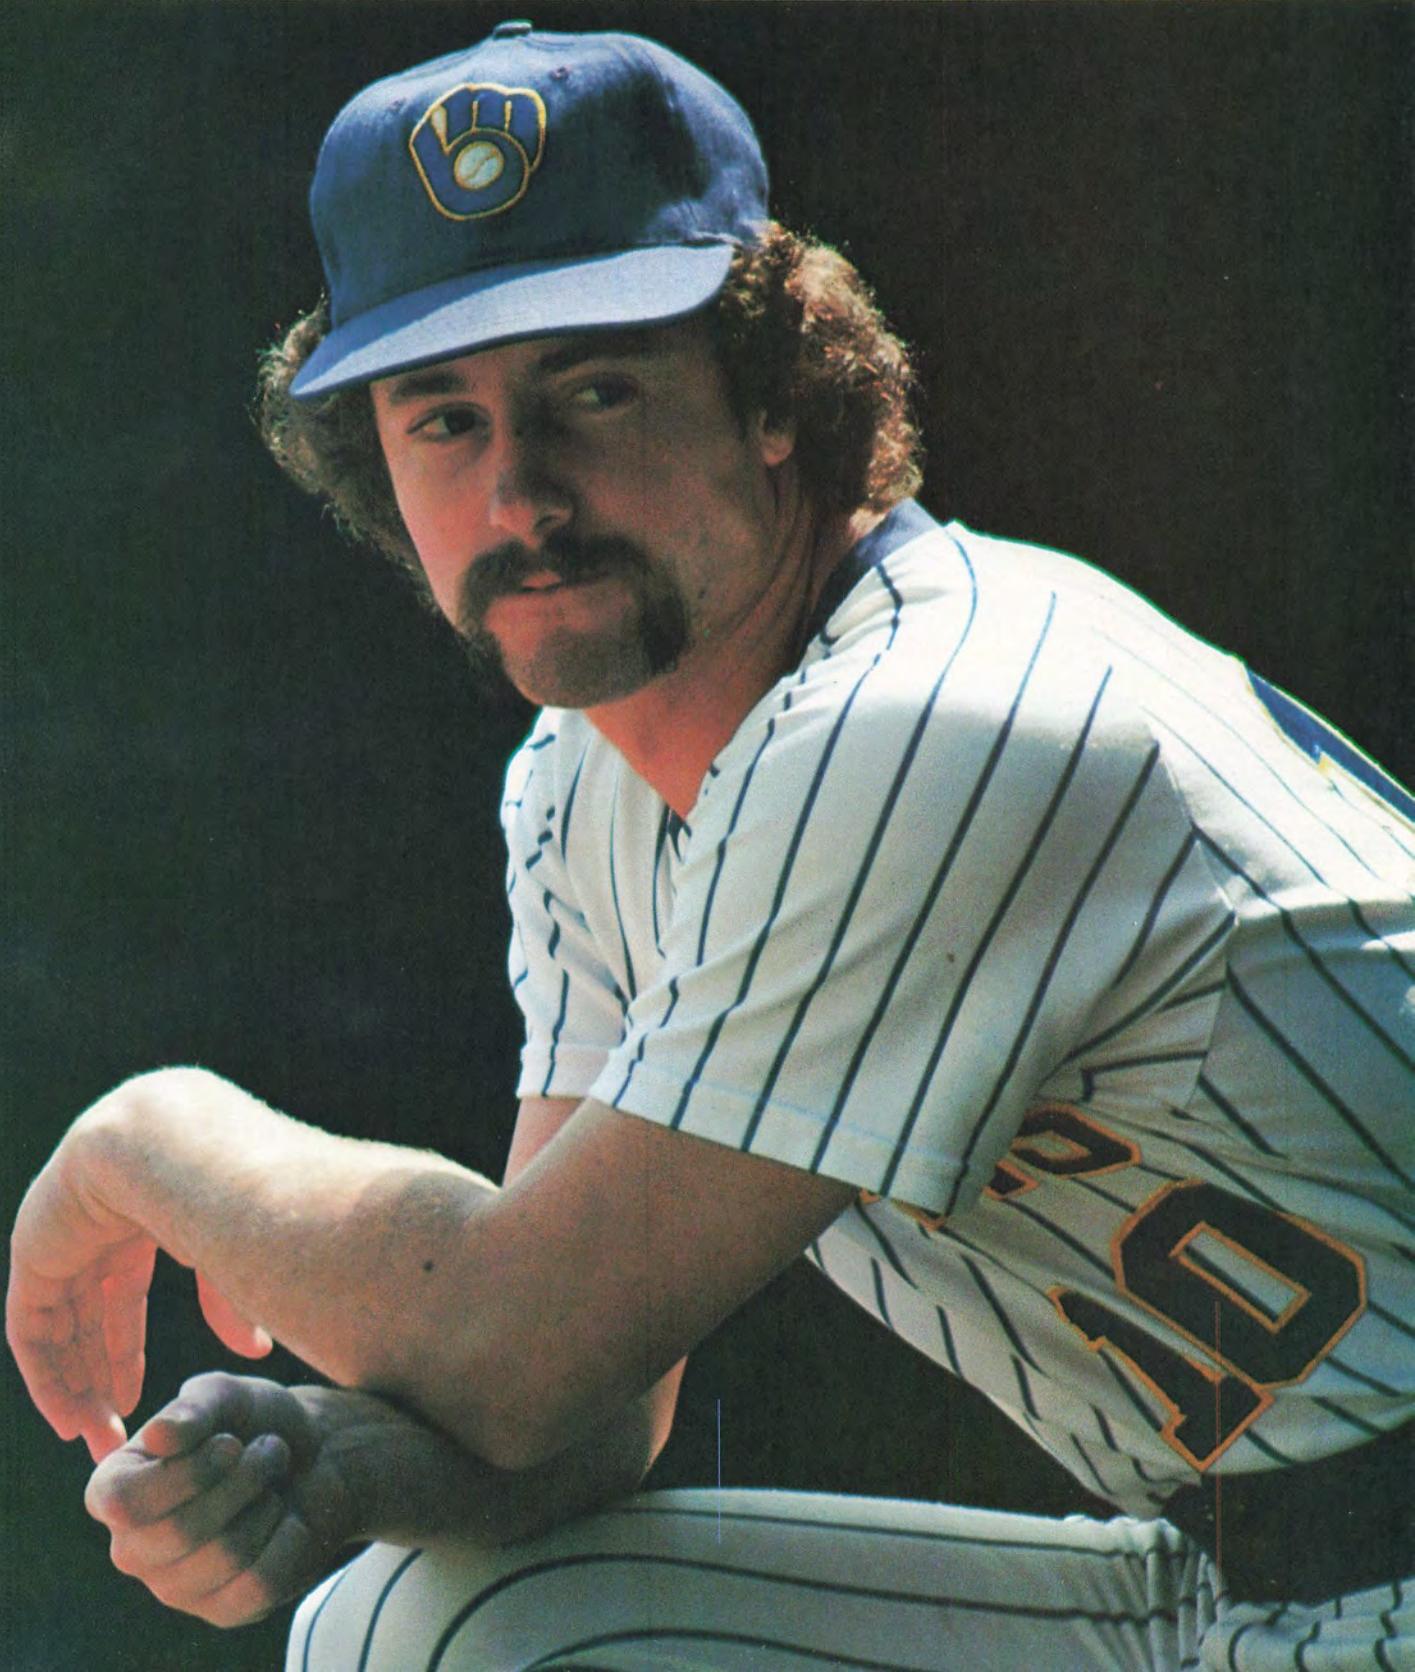

Dick had six game winning RBIs last season as he was a major part of the Brewers outstanding bench strength, delivering a game winning blow every nine at bats. April was his best month at the plate with a .333 mark and a .300 average with men on base. But June and July were his busiest months, playing in 33 games with 21 RBIs, six of which were game winners and collecting four of his five homers.

14/Jim
WOHLFORD

Wolfie came off the bench last season to spark the Brewers, hitting a fine .297 with 35 hits in 46 games. Ten of his hits went for extra bases as he enjoyed his best months in June and July, batting a solid .389 in 18 contests. His slugging percentage for both months was .537, an amazing statistic, since Larry Hisle set a club record with a .533 mark. Wolfie's strikeout ratio of one every 11.8 at bats led the club while he was third in RBI ratio, collecting one every 6.2 times to the plate.

17/Jim GANTNER

Jimmy was another member of the Brewer bench who rose to the occasion playing excellently at each position in the infield. His hottest months at the plate were in June and July, where in one stretch he hit .381. Raised in Eden, Wisc., Jimmy hit .325 in clutch situations at County Stadium and had his best average against Chicago with a .333 batting mark. At the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh he participated in the NAIA World Series twice with the Titans.
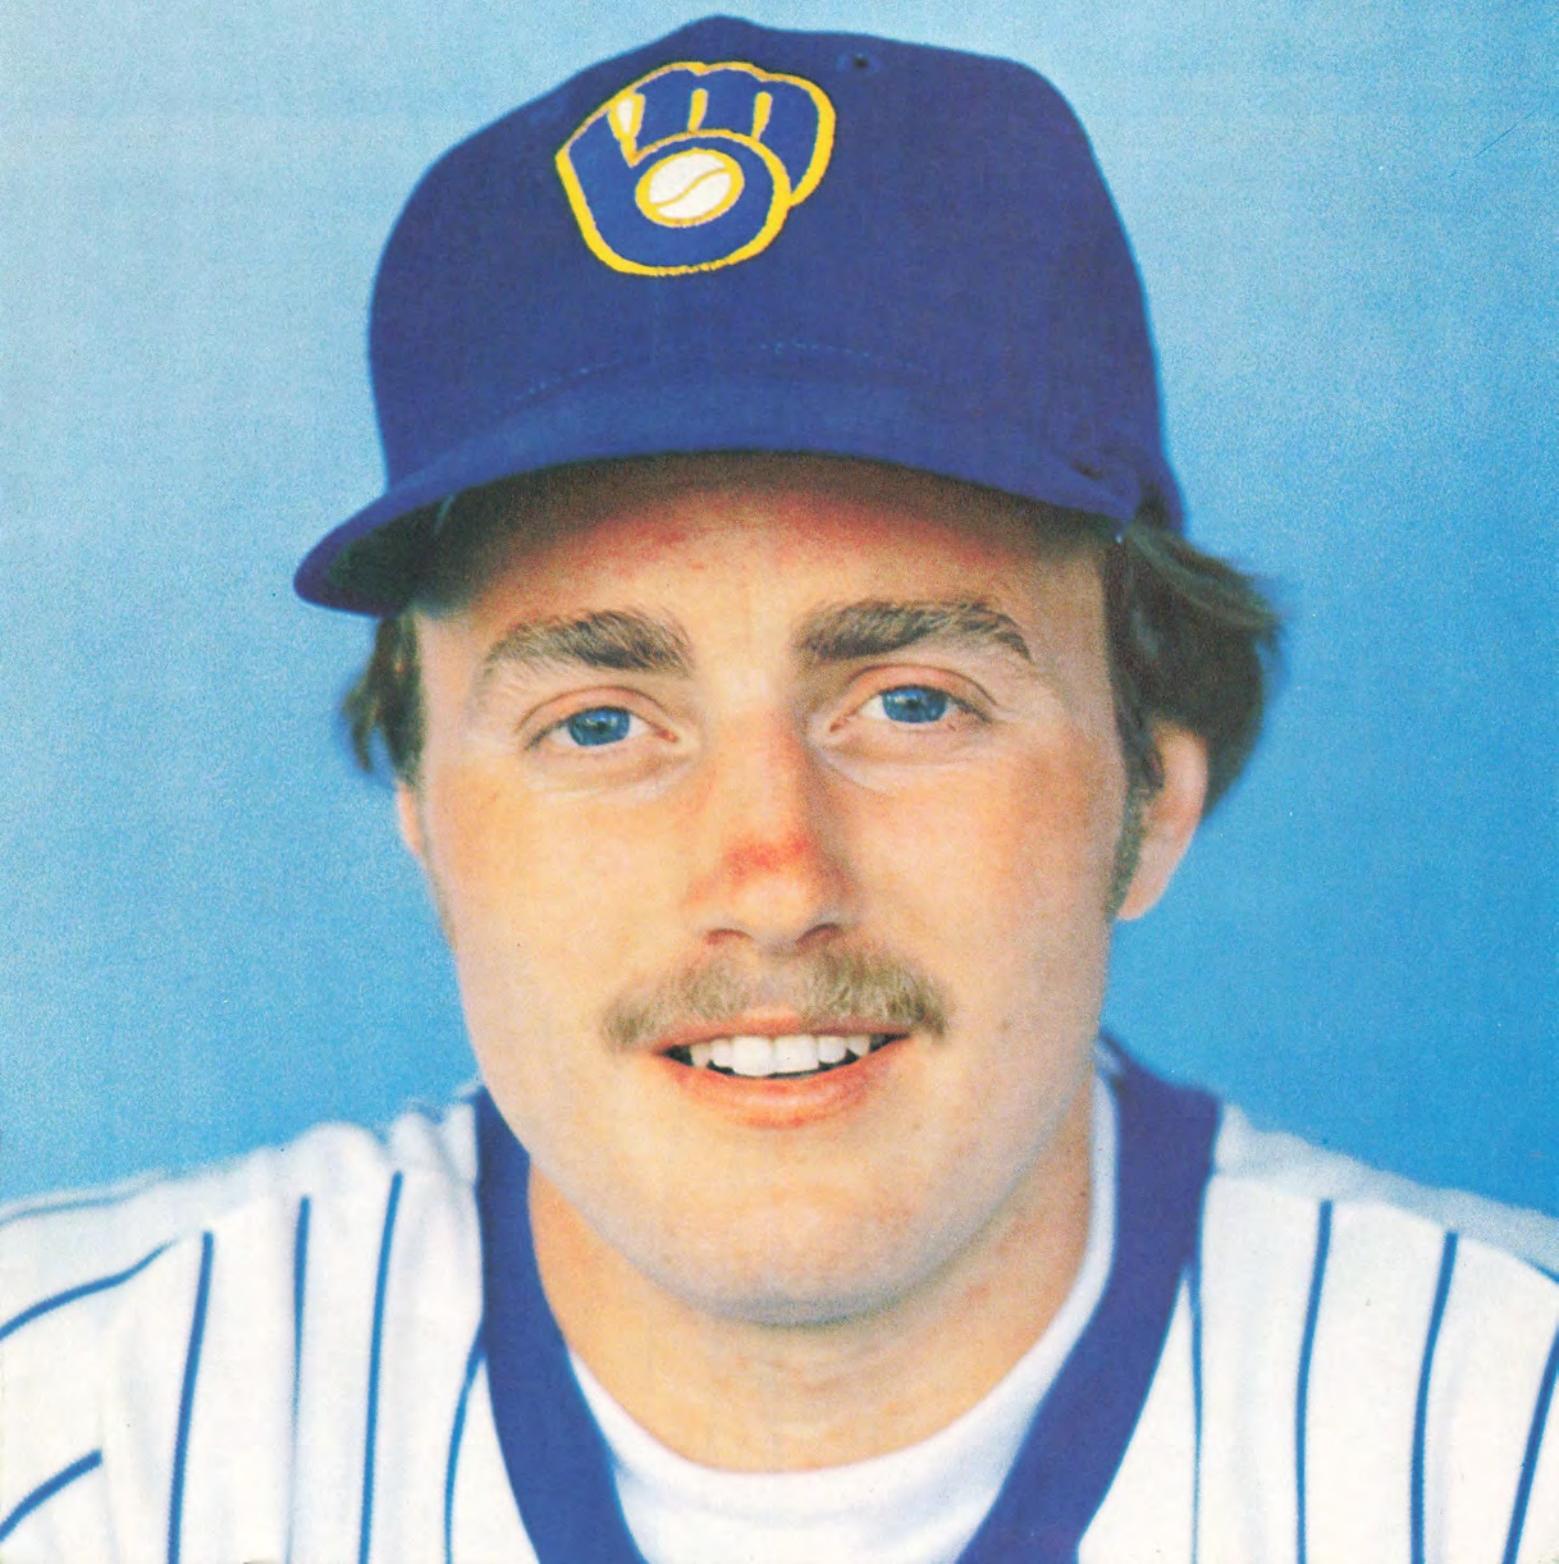

27/Andy REPLOGLE

Used as a spot starter, Andy became a key addition to the pitching staff almost immediately after being acquired from the Baltimore Orioles last April. This lanky righthander won three straight games through May and added another string of five consecutive victories from July 23rd through September 13th to run his record to 9-2 and finished the season with a respectable 9-5 record as a rookie. Andy was outstanding in August posting a 2-0 mark and a superb 1.16 ERA, earning him the Brewers Pitcher of the Month Award.

43/Randy STEIN

At 6 foot 4 inches, Randy, a rookie last season, employed a deceptive high kick motion keeping batters off balance and helping him average 5.2 strikeouts per nine innings in 31 outings. Used primarily as a reliever, he began to click in July, pitching well in eight of nine appearances, earning a win and a save and finishing the season with a 3-2 record in 72.2 innings.
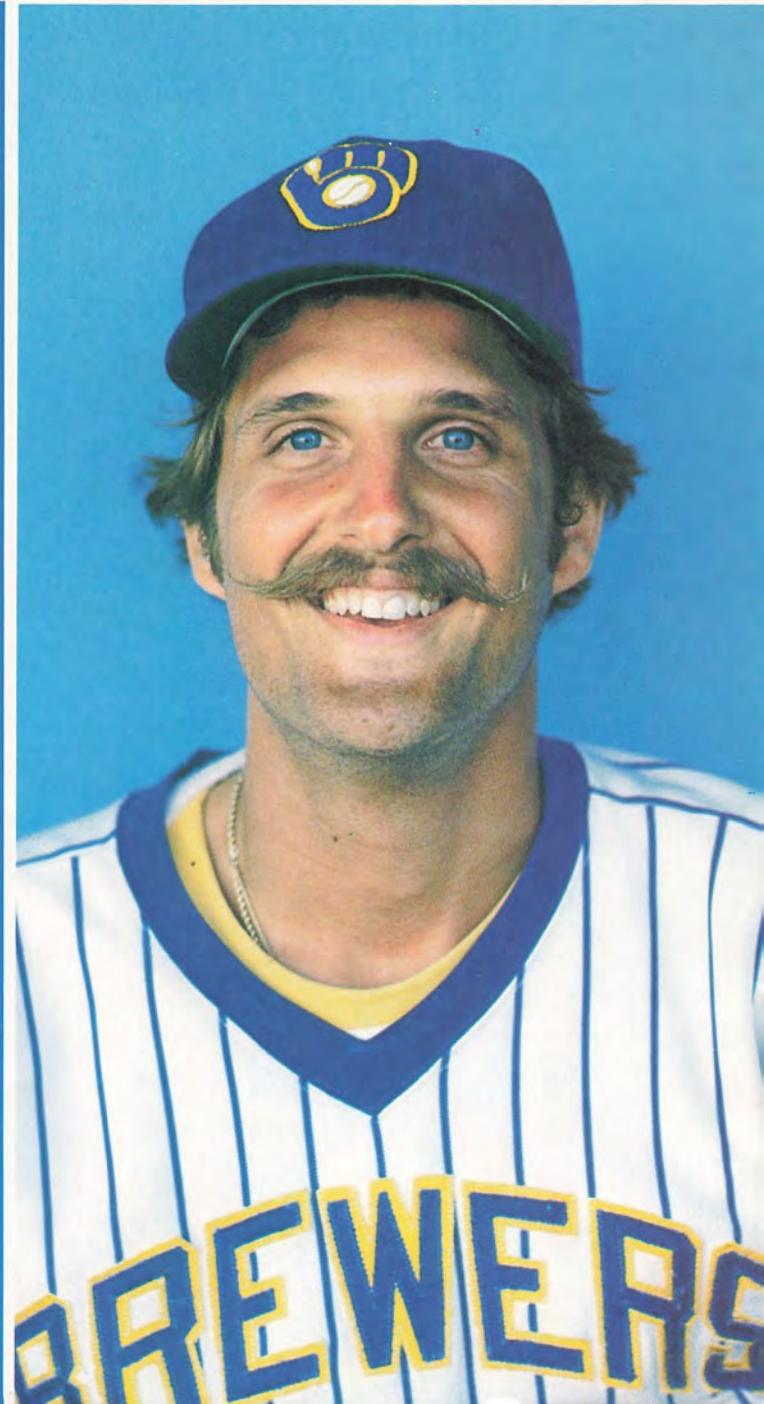

2/Lenn SAKATA

Lenn began last season as a Brewer regular, playing second base against lefthanded pitchers, going five for 12 in his first four games for a .417 average. After playing 12 games in April he was batting .333 going 10 for 30, but Lenn was optioned to Spokane to give him an opportunity to play more and wound up with a .269 mark in 45 games with the Indians. He topped the Pacific Coast League second basemen with a .978 fielding average.

40/Willie MUELLER

Brought up to the parent club in mid-season, Willie appeared in five games as a reliever, posting a 1-0 record. At Holyoke, the Brewers Double A farm team, the husky righthander registered a 7-5 mark with an impressive 15 saves in 53 outings. A native of West Bend, Wisc., Willie had a 2.91 ERA at Holyoke and could be available for the Brewer bullpen this season.
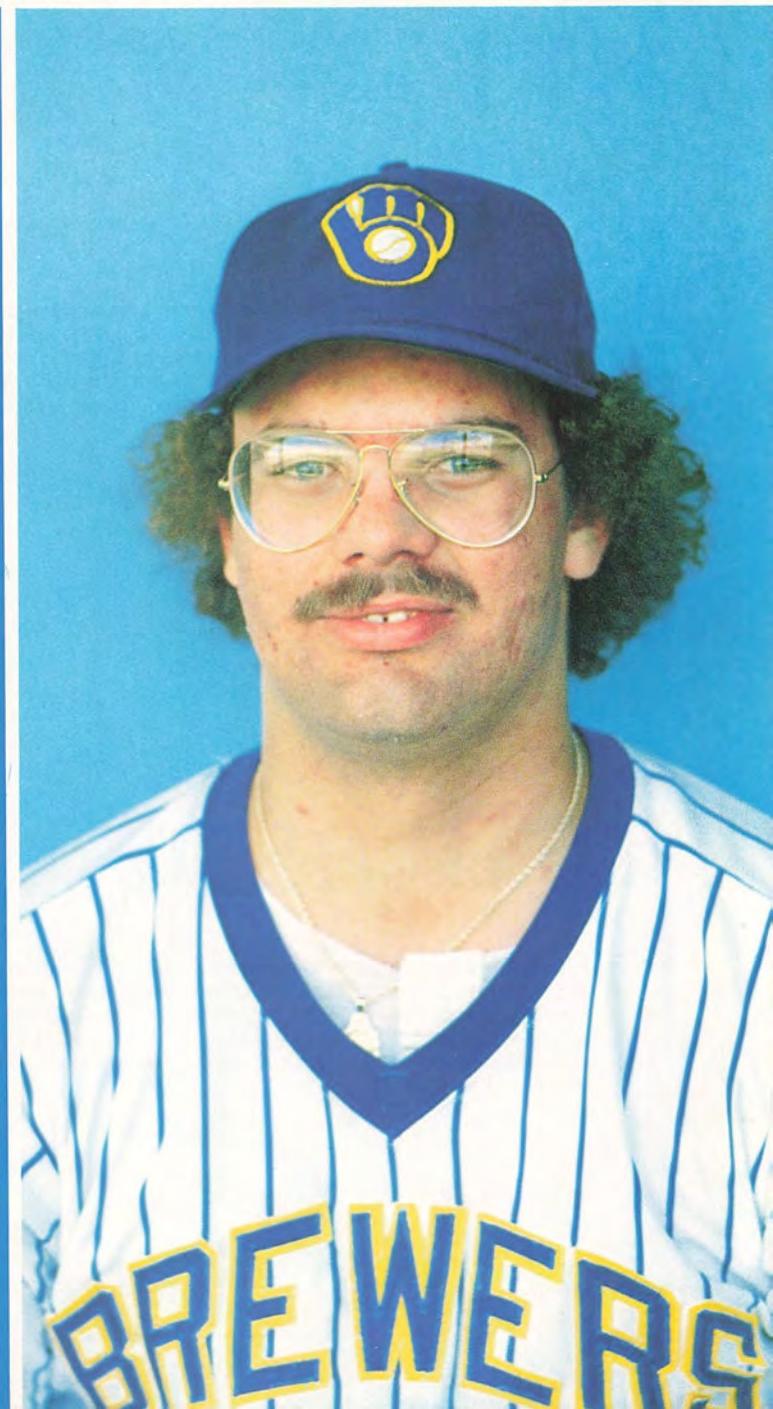

1/Tim NORDBROOK

Timmy, acquired from Toronto last May for Tim Johnson, was thrust into action immediately at shortstop in a three game series at Kansas City. A freak collision with Royals George Brett at second base sidelined Timmy for the remainder of the season with a nerve injury to his foot, after playing in only his second game in a Brewer uniform.
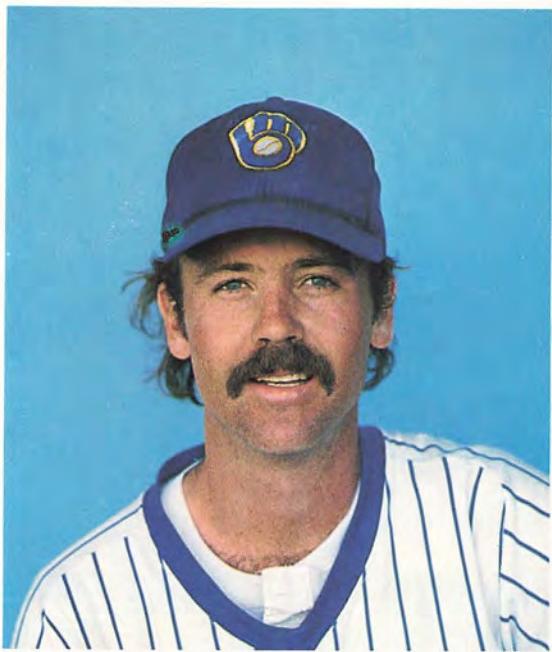

11/Jeff YURAK

The "Most Valuable Player" in the Eastern League, Jeff topped the league in five areas at Holyoke: homeruns (21), total bases (255), hits (154), doubles (28), and intentional walks (14). He also led the Millers with 79 runs and 89 RBIs. Jeff joined the Brewer roster on September 14th, appearing as a pinch hitter in four of five games, hitting the ball well.
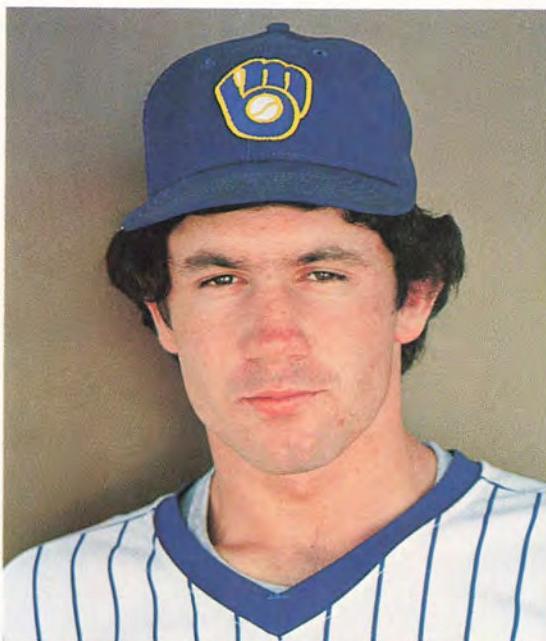

45/Bob GALASSO

A converted outfielder, Bob has a powerful right arm which is valued for its strikeout capabilities. Signed by the Brewers as a free agent on 2 April 1978, he spent last season with the club's Triple A farm team at Spokane, fanning 134 batters in 178 innings while registering a 10-13 record and 11 complete games in 28 starts.

"BREWER BROADCASTERS"

MERLE HARMON
BOB UECKER
MIKE HEGAN

Merle, Bob and Mike are teaming up again in 1979 to bring all the Brewer action over the airwaves on WTMJ -- Television and Radio. Considered one of the finest broadcasting teams in the major leagues, they never miss a pitch, adding informative, humorous, and objective insights on players, coaches and the entire baseball scene. For Merle, this is his tenth season as the "Voice of the Brewers." A man with over 20 years of broadcasting experience, Merle has been the play-by-play announcer for the New York Jets, the old Milwaukee Braves as well as the Minnesota Twins and the Kansas City A's. Bob, a native Milwaukeean and ex-major league catcher, has gained national attention working as the color commentator on ABC's Monday Night Baseball. Besides adding his unique style of play-by-play announcing to the broadcasting booth, he has also been able to provide a firsthand knowledge of the game. Mike, who begins his second season with the Brewer Television Network, was one of the most popular players ever to wear a Brewer uniform. He spent ten seasons in the big leagues with Seattle, Oakland, the New York Yankees and six right here in Milwaukee.
